So let's get straight into it. The author weaves in action as a man with a speech impediment hosts a podcast, promotes disability awareness on WLS-TV. Getting behind a microphone for a live broadcast can sometimes be a real challenge; but imagine hosting a show with a speech impediment. He strode majestically up and down the streets, accepting the obeisances of his subjects, inspecting the sidewalks and making sure the police were on their beats, dropping in at a favored saloon where he was hailed and toasted to partake of the free lunch or into the theater of an evening, visiting the markets, the wharves, the banks and exchanges on California Street, and the boardrooms of businesses, passing out candy to children, and attending every meeting of the California Academy of Sciences, which were held in the First Congregational Church on the corner of Dupont and California.
